

Relationships of closeness and distance between people as well as between people and other living beings or things must be renegotiated again and again, both individually and socially: to protect the personality, freedom, the environment ... In the art context the prohibition of touching is omnipresent to protect the work of art. At the same time, art touches us entirely without physical contact which is one of its greatest potentials. But here, too, it is a matter of dealing with boundaries in terms of emotional overpowering and manipulation or hurt.

The exhibition, comprising more than 250 works, shows highly diverse artistic approaches to these questions. It provides an impressive overview of the great multiplicity of aesthetic practices among our members and is at the same time an expression and the result of their great commitment to the Kunstverein.
